NEW YORR CITY STREET CLEANING CONTRACT.

Mr. CROWLEY, Chairman of the Committee on Municipal Amairs, directed several weeks ago to investigate the New York city street cleaning contract, reported that they found many of the streets and avenues in an almost impassible condition, owing to the large amount of snow, ice, garbage and refuse matter in them; that the contract is loosely drawn and has not been compiled with by the assignee, Mr. Whiting. The committee censure the Street Cleaning Commissioners for not seeing that the contract is faithfully executed, and close by recommending, first, to compet the city to furnish an additional number of dumping grounds; second, directing the principal streets to be kept clear from snow and ice; third, competing all street railroad companies in the city to remove the snow from their roads and one or two feet on each side thereof; fourth, empowering said Street Cleaning Commissioners or city authorities to make a new contract for cleaning the streets in case the present contract should be terminated.

THE STANWIX HALL TRAGEDY.

Trial of George W. Cole for the Murder of L.

ALBANY, April 29, 1868. In the case of George W. Cole for the murder of L. Harris Hiscock the testimony on the part of defence was resumed this morning.

William J. Hadley, one of the comment for the prisoner, was sworn and examined as the custody prisoner, was sworn and examined as on the custody of a certain letter handed him by ar. John L. Cuyler, and which remained in his possession until one evening last week, when was opened in the presence of his associate counsel. The reading was objected to yester ay by Mr. Tremaine. It was now sought to mintroduced by the defence as evidence, but it was objected to by the prosecution on the cound that there is no evidence showing that the prisoner knew the contents of the letter, the presumption being that it was sealed while in his sumption being that it was sealed while in his possession, and the court sustained the objection on hese grounds.

Mr. Parker, for the defence, said they would prove another fact and then offer the letter again.

Mr. Hadley was again placed upon the stand and seked several questions in relation to the contents of another fact and then offer the letter again.

Mr. Hadley was again placed upon the stand and asked several questions in relation to the contents of the letter and as to what the prisoner said in regard to it, to all of which objections were made and sustained by the court.

Dr. W. H. Palmer, of Providence, being sworn, testified as follows—Was surgeon of the Third New York cavalry while the prisoner belonged to that regiment; attended him when hurt by falling off his horse.—(witness here described the injuries the prisoner was suffering from when brought to the hospital)—after the injury his character seemed to have changed; so marked was this change that I am of the opinion he was suffering from melancholy; after the Tarbero raid, the fatigues of which increased his suffering to such an extent, I was induced to grant him sick leave; think his mind was in an unsound condition at that time.

Mrs. Mary E. Cuyler, cousin of General Cole, sworn—I resided with General Cole until my marriage; boarded at the Jervis House just previous to the homicide; saw the General in his parlor on the Sunday morning previous to the homicide; he said, "Why didn't you tell me of this? why didn't you tell me of Hiscock's being with her? I thought I left some friends in Syracuse, but you have kept if quiet until I am a ruined and disgraced man; don't tell me now, for Mary has told me all—she has confessed it all." He was greatly affected; so much so that I could not stay there, but went to may room a while again several times during that day and evening and on Monday morning; he was still greatly affected, his eyes red; appeared to be weeping; saw him again on Tuesday morning; thought ne was more affected than before, he walked around nervously and trembled; on Tuesday morning; thought ne was more affected than before, he walked around nervously and trembled; on Tuesday morning; we was still greatly affected, his eyes red; appeared to be weeping; saw him again on Tuesday morning; we want to the strip of the strip of the strip of the s heard of the shooting I sent the letter to be published, in accordance with the directions I had received.

John Demille, sworn—Am a hackman in Syracuse. Witness was asked if he knew Hiscock and Mrs. Cole, to which objection was made.

Mr. Mitchell, for the defence, said he proposed to show by this witness that Mr. Hiscock had hired his hack, which was closed, and taken in a lady from off the public streets, riding some two or three miles in the country, returning, leaving the lady again on the streets; that that lady was Mrs. Cole.

After hearing the arguments on both sides the court took its usual recess.

On the reassembling of the court Mr. Tremain said the evidence now offered was offered for the purpose of showing adultery between deceased and the prisoner's wife several years since. He objected to the festimony on the ground that the testimony is final missable by way of excuse or palliation upon an indictment for murder or to reduce the offence from nurder to manisal upher; second, it is not admissible in any case where the weapon used was a murderous one and the intent was to kill; third, it throws no light on the state of the prisoner's mind at the time of the homicide, the character of the communication alone affording evidence on that point. He quoted numerous precedents in support of these positions.

Mr. Rooker replied Taat the defence intended to

Mr. Rooker replied that the defence intended to how not only the fact of adultery at the time relong existence of the adulterous acts furnished addi-tional aggravation, and that the question whether tional aggravation, and that the question whether there had been cooling time or not was one for the jury to decide. He claimed that there was not a case on record, whether the question of insanity was involved or not, where this evidence was excluded. Numerous cases were cited to show that such evidence was admissible and its proof regarded as furnishing justification.

Mr. Tremain replied that he did not intend to permit the guiters of Syracuse to be dragged to oitain this evidence when the lips of the man charged with the offence were sealed in death. He ridiculed the cases cited on the other side as unsettling the well known principles of law as laid down by Sir Matthew Hale and other numinaries of the law. Mr. Tremain referred to the Sickles case, and read from Mr. Brady's speech to the jury on that trial to show that Sickles killed Key white the latter was in the act of signalling the wife of Sickles.

Mr. Brady interrupted Mr. Tremain to say that in that case all the facts in regard to the adultery were admitted in evidence, and that evidence of the fact was admitted that in Key's pocket were found two keys, one of which fitted the outer door of the house of assignation in Fifteenth street, and the other the inner door.

Mr. Tremain briefly replied that the alleged adultery was no justification of the homicide, independent of the question of insanity, and that the alleged occurrence was ne part of the communication to the prisoner.

occurrence was no part of the communication to the prisoner.
Charles P. Cole sworn and examined by Mr. Mitchell—Reside in Cortland village; am editor and publisher of a newspaper.
Mr. Brady said the defence had put this witness on the stand to establish liscocks guilt and to show their bona Maes in making the offer by the previous witness. He had numerous other witnesses to establish guilt to a demonstration.
Mr. Tremian objected to this remark as uncalled for and improper on a soliciant trial like this.
Mr. Brady said the defence would offer no further testinony on this point.
The offer was rejected under the previous ruling of the court.

The offer was rejected under the previous runing of the court.

John R. Hawkins sworn and examined by Mr. Mitchell—I reside in Syracuse; am a guismith; I called on General Cole last spring with Mr. Rodgers on business when he was on the winduitl; I had-a conversation with him in regard to going into business with him; he seemed dirildent and moody and lost in thought for a minute; after the subject was brouched be talked rationally enough, and each he would call and see me again; he did not do so, and did not recognize me afterwards, although I saw him every day; he appeared like a moody and sullen fellow.

before that; had seen him frequently; Mr. Rodgers, introduced is. Witness here detailed the conversation.

James M. Gould sworn and examined by Mr. Mitchell—I reside near Aurora, Cayuga county; my former wife and Mrs. Cole's family are indirectly related; saw the prisoner on the day of the homicide get on the cars at Syracuse; the cars were standing across Salima street; he approached from the south and I from the north; I knew the prisoner well; I observed, as he came on the platform of the ear, an unusual and singular appearance; he seemed very pale and downcast and oblivious to everything surrounding; he looked at me as he came up the steps, but gave no sign of recognition; he went into the car, timed around and came to the door and asked me if all were well at home; I said they were, and he went back; his appearance struck me at the time; I did not see him afterwards; the cars soon after moved.

Cross-examined by Mr. Sedgwick—I live at James-ville; knew prisoner ten or twelve years; saw him at Syracuse during the war, and afterwards three or four times in 1865; I was not going on the cars; his countenance was not flushed; looked pale and sad; I did not inquire as to his neath.

George Raynor recalled and examined by Mr. Mitchell—I knew prisoner two or three years before he went to the war; at the time of the homicide his general character at Syracuse, as far as I knew, was good.

Mr. Mitchell said the defence would introduce no further evidence of general character miess it was controverted by the prosecution.

Mr. Mitchell said the defence would introduce no further evidence of general character unless it was controverted by the prosecution,
Mr. Hadley here offered in evidence a paper marked "Exhibit C," as follows:—
I learn from undoubted evidence that L. H. Hiscock has forcibly endeavored to dishonor my wife in my room. He obtained opportunity thus to de through professed friendship to me. He has often since made her the subject of his obscence attacks in my absence in the army, and by thus plicatting her has rulned her peace and my own. COTTON PLANTERS AND MANUPACTURERS.

Formation of a National Association of Cotton

Planters and Manufacturers—Delegates from the Southern States—The New England Manufacturers Largely Represented.

In response to an invitation tendered to the growers of cotton and the manufacturers of cotton goods to assemble in this city for the purpose of consultant in relation to the formation of a national association, having for its object the national association, having for its object the promotion of the mutual interest of both parties, a large assemblage of delegates from the different States, South as well as North, met at the St. Nicholas Hotel yesterday. At quarter past one o'clock the meeting was called to order and entered upon the deliberation of the business before it. Among those who were present and took part in the proceedings Company, Alabama; J. T. Moorhead, Leaksville Manufacturing Company, North Carolina; Benj. Deford, Granite Manufacturing Company, Maryland; Louis Brand, New York; Lenoir Brothers, Tennessee; David Mills, Maryland; G. J. Garry, Albertson Mills, Maryland; George P. Lyman, Hadley Manufacturing Company, Massachusetts; H. Daniels, Rhode Island; D. Lambert, Jr., Delaware; J. W. Wesson, Mississippi Manufacturing Company, Mississippi; M. W. Pratt, Arkwright Manufacturing iels, Rhode Island; D. Lambert, Jr., Delaware; J. W. Wesson, Mississippi Manufacturing Company, Mississippi; M. W. Pratt, Arkwright Manufacturing Company, New Jersey; Carpenter and Earle, New York; George L. Hyde, Hyde Manufacturing Company, Connecticut: Edward Atkinson, indian Orchard Mills, Massachusetts, and Joseph N. Ruch, Shawnee Mills, Pennsylvania. The names of those given work over one hundred and thirty thousand spindles, and the amount of capital invested foots up millions of dollars. There were a great number of others present whose names are not mentioned owing to their neglect to make the necessary entry on the book provided for that purpose.

A little after one o'clock the Convention was called together, and Mr. Daniel Pratt, o'Alabama, called together, and so see that a movement had been made in this direction. He regarded it as a gleam of light through the dark clouds that had for some time past in a measure hung over the presperity of the country, and which affected more particularly the Southern section of the country. It was a cheering thing to find the North ready to unite with the South for a mutual interest. At the close of the war, the gentleman went on to say, he believed the people of the South submitted willingly to the consequences arising therefrom; the issues which the war brought about were unquestioned, and the Southern people resolved to be loyal. But the respits of the war had a disastrous effect upon their energies; still they did all in their power to better themselves. They acknowledged the freedom of their energies; still they did all in their power to be the themselves. They acknowledged the freedom of the negroes, repudiated the Southern war debt and took the oath of allegiance to the national government. Yet he believed Congress had dene injustice to a great proportion of the best citizens of the South who are disfranchised.

Mr. Mudge, of Massachusetts, then submitted the

Mr. Mudge, of Massachusetts, then submitted the following resolution:—

Resolved, That it is desirable and expedient that we now proceed to take measures for a permanent organization of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association.

Mr. MUDGE then addressed those present on the necessity of an organization of the kind proposed and after pointing out many of the advantages accruing from its establishment, referred to the benefit it would be in a legislative point of view. Taking, for instance, the tariff question when brought up in Congress and referred to its appropriate or a special committee, as the case might be, how beneficial it would be for the committee to whom it was so referred to have the views of practical workingmen whose years were spent among manufactories and whose capital was employed in manufacturing. He did not wish to be understood to throw any slur upon among manufactories and whose capital was employed in manufacturing. He did not wish to be understood to throw any siur upon the intelligence of our legislatures, but contended that representatives from agricultural districts could not possibly know the subject so thoroughly as manufacturers, such that the information which an association of the nature proposed could place at the disposal of our legislators would be a valuable auxiliary in securing more intelligent and correct legislation. This was only one of the advantages which would be secured.

Mr. Moorman, of North Carolina, was the next speaker, and urged the adoption of the resolution. Ile said the manufacturers of his State looked forward to the formation of the association with a considerable degree of interest. Before the war, he said, Northern mechanics, from a false idea, hesitated to go South, cherishing the idea that the Southern people were antagonistic to them. This, perhaps, was one of the causes why the manufacturing interests of the South was not more developed than what it was. This is now changed. You possess the experience here in manufacturing which the Southern manufacturers lack. In his State there were twenty manufactories, yunning from one to two thousand spindles. All the machinery was old and nearly worn out. The energy and spirit were there, and only wanted development. An association of the nature in course of formation was sure, he thought, to be productive of good.

crey and spirit were there, and only wanted development. An association of the nature in course of formation was sure, he thought, to be productive of good.

General Patterson, of Philadelphia, also urged the adoption of the resolution.

The Chairman ther put it to the vote of the meeting, when it was carried unanimously.

A committee on constitution and by-laws, consisting of the following gentlemen, was moved and adopted:—Abraham Murdock, Alapama; D. Lammot, Delaware; James A. Gerry, Maryland; John F. Arnold, Massachusetts; D. J. Johnson, New York, and Henry V. Ward, Massachusetts.

A recess of twenty minutes was taken, and the committee brought in a report, and the constitution and by-laws submitted were approved.

According to the constitution the association will benceforth be known as the "National Association of Cotten Manufacturers and Planters." It will hold annual meetings, the first of which will take plage the third Wednesday of June, 1889. The officers of the association shall consist of a president, vice president, chosen from each State represented in the association: a secretary, a "treasurer, an executive committee of five, not less than thirty nor more than first directors, and the members of the standing committees, who together shall constitute the government of the association.

There are to be four standing committees—viz: on finance, statistics, machinery and raw material, the duties of which shall be as follows:—

1. The Committee on Finance shall have the general superintendence of all matters of hunner connected with the association, and one or bither of the members thereof shall give his written approval to all vouchers of expenditure, in called to their payment by the treasurer.

2. The Committee on Statistics shall, with the slid of the statistics, machinery and raw materials to their payment by the treasurer.

3. The Committee on Ray Marchais shall take into consideration the origin and externation to the manufacture of cotton, especially such as with providence of the home provide to increase and diversity it, and the means best calculated to increase and diversity it, and report the results of their investigations to the government.

On the adoption of the constitution a committee of seventeen was appointed to make nominations of officers for permanent organization, and the Convention adjourned until half-past seven o'clock.

At half-past seven o'clock the Convention again assembled, Richard Garsed in the chair. The committee appointed on permanent officers submitted the following report:

adopted:—

The following resolution was then submitted and adopted:

Resolved, That the government shall, in its discretion, add from ten to twenty names to the list of directors, so as to include, if possible, a representative from each State.

After the adoption of the last resolution the Convention adjourned sine die

The business of both sessions was characterized by adlegree of earnestness worth y of the object for which the delegates were drawn hither. The remedying of existing evits in the shipment of cotton, the development of Southern resources in manufacturing cotton goods, the cultivation of friendly feelings and mutual interests between planters and manufacturers, and the effect which such accomplishment would exercise on the commercial prosperity of the nation, were incidentally alluded to. The planters and manufacturers each had a mutual interest to advance, and both pledged themselves to the carrying out of the plant for the formation of an association which, it was contended, could not fall in securing to the consumer as well as the producer beneficial results not heretofore enjoyed.

BURNING OF THE PROPELLER C. C. LEARY.

The steam propeller C. C. Leary, for the past six weeks laid up in the dock foot North Seventh street, Brooklyn, E. D., awaiting repairs, took fire about three o'clock yesterday morning, and sustained a damage of nearly $30,000. The origin of the fire is uncertain. Flames were first seen to issue from the ship near her smoke stack, and it is believed that the fire was started in the coal bunkers, which contained about forty tons of soft coal.

The firemen succeeded in keeping the fire within the interior of the ship, but could not subdue it, and it was finally concluded to scuttle her and save the hull, which was accomplished after much effort.

The injured propeller was built in Mystic, Conn., in 1864, at a cost of $130,000, and was lately valued at $80,000 and insured for $65,000 by her owners, Arthur Leary and others. The insurance is distributed as follows:—Liverpool, London and Globe, $40,000; Queen, $10,000; Royal, $6,000; American, of Philadelphia, $5,000; Narragansett, of Providence, $5,000.

MISCELLANEOUS. A BOUT VENUS, ANGIENT AND MODERN.

The fabled thems for boet's song.
Of Venus riging from the song.
And dripping from the sociations, and dripping for many the sociations.
Singing ber round to be sociations, and the sociation of the thems and song do very well.
For poets brains and rippining verse, But we have truer words to tell.
And better subjects to rehearse.

With some poor soap, she may complain.

Rui tet her try the well known "Prize,"

Or "DAVID'S" make, the champion "Soa
And see how soon the labor files.

How quick each stain and mark will slope.

She then will rise like Venus, too,

From auds, with smile and cheerful face,
And say she'd hunt the city through
